GERMANY CLAIMS SWEEPING VICTORIES

Fuehrer's 'Intrigue' Revealed

Hess Sent To Isle To Seek Ally In War On Soviet

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen
WASHINGTON, June 30—Following the outbreak of the Nazi-Russian war, European capitals buzzed with reports of a German offer to Britain to make peace, then turn their united forces against Soviet Russia. These reports were not empty rumors; they were absolutely true.

Behind them is a story of the most audacious and astounding Nazi intrigue of the war to date. Its opening scene was the sensational Hess "flight" to Britain; its closing paragraph the "surprise" Nazi declaration of war on their ally, Red Russia.

The inner details of this brain-reeling plot are not yet unraveled and all of them won't leak out until the history books are written. But authorities have pieced it together and it is now possible to get the main outlines.

Following the victorious Balkan campaign which made Germany master of Europe, powerful military-Nazi elements, always hating the Communists, began urging peace with Britain in exchange for a British-German coalition against Russia. After a bitter struggle inside the Nazi party, Hitler sided with the anti-Red group and the wheels were set in motion to line up the British.

It was realized that they would have to be approached in such a manner that they could not doubt the authenticity of the Nazi plan. So Hess was chosen for this mission. Not only was he the one man in Germany closest to Hitler, but he was also known for his hatred of Communism. And before the war he had had contacts with the British nobility.

So Hess, not flying alone, but accompanied by several guiding planes; and not taking off from central Germany as reported, but from Norway, made his dramatic descent on the estate of the Scotch Duke of Hamilton.

Hess' Message
The message brought by Hess in substance was as follows:

(1) Britain and Germany would enter a coalition as a new Axis; (2) Italy would be placated with some minor possessions of France, which would be stripped of its empire; (3) Germany would retain a free hand on the whole of the Continent, with Britain helping to establish that free hand by joining Germany in conquering Russia.

The British Government's answer was to incarcerate Hess and immediately notify Washington and Moscow of the plan.

The subsequent chain of events in history. Darian and Laval were among the first to get wind of (Continued on Page Two)

G-MEN ARREST 24 IN GERMAN SPY RING

Five Years for Draft Evasion

MERRITT Garst is shown above with his wife after U. S. District Judge Harry E. Kalodner sentenced him to five years in prison because he did not register for the draft. It was the longest sentence imposed so far for draft evasion. Pleading nolle contendere (no defense), Garst read a three-page statement in court in which he urged civil disobedience, non-cooperation and peaceful revolution against the selective service act.

'Stop' Streets Enforced; Several Mishaps Listed In Circleville District

With "stop" streets in the city clearly marked by newly painted signs, traffic officers during the week end enforced the "stop" street regulation by arresting two violators. Both have been cited to appear before local magistrates Monday.

The "stop" street signs, painted late last week by the Service and Safety Departments, consist of white letters painted across the pavement at each stop street. They supplement the yellow and black upright signs already at "stop" street intersections.

Accidents caused this summer by failure to observe "stop" signs have been greater than ever before, traffic officers point out.

Guy Buskirk, 18, Williamsport Route 1, was arrested Sunday at 4 p. m. at West Mill and Western Avenue after he had failed to observe the Western Avenue "stop" sign and had driven his car into the automobile of Merle E. Davis, 376 Walnut Street. The right side of Davis' car and the left front end and bumper of Buskirk's car were damaged, according to Traffic Officer Miller Fissell. Brakes on the Buskirk car also (Continued on Page Two)

NEW AIRCRAFT GUN EXHIBITED BY AKRON FIRM

AKRON, June 30—The first 40 millimeter anti-aircraft rifles ever built in this country were to be demonstrated today at the Firestone Tire & Rubber company's plant before an audience of army officers, newspaper editors and federal officials.

The Firestone company produced the two guns to be used in the demonstration less than four months after signing army contracts.

Attending the demonstration were Maj.-Gen. Charles M. Wesson, the army's chief of ordnance; Lieut.-Col. H. M. Reedall, executive officer of the Cleveland Ordnance district; David Towell, president of the Akron Chamber of Commerce; Lon Tighe, head of the Akron Defense Council and the Cleveland and Akron newspaper editors.

The gun carriages were built by the Chrysler corporation of Detroit.

The demonstration was to last all afternoon, and was to wind up with a defense broadcast over a national network at 7 p. m. with General Wesson and Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., taking part.

FUND TRANSFER SIGNED

A court entry signed by Judge Phil Henderson, Monday, transferred $2,675 from the Ashville Board of Education's Permanent Improvement fund to its general fund. The transfer will permit the funds to be used for necessary current operating expenses. Judge Henderson, who is from Logan, is sitting here during absence of Judge Meeker Terwilliger.

J. Edgar Hoover Says Great Roundup Fruit Of Two Years Of Work

ALL SUSPECTS NAMED

18 Caught In New York, Six In Other Parts Of Land; Arraignment Set

NEW YORK, June 30—Amid strong indications that important military secrets of the United States are in the hands of a foreign power—probably Nazi Germany—high ranking Department of Justice officials flew in from Washington today for the arraignment of 18 members of a nation-wide spy ring rounded up in New York yesterday.

NEW YORK, June 30—Eighteen members of one of the greatest spy rings in the nation's history were scheduled to be arraigned in Brooklyn federal court today on charges of preying on vital National Defense secrets in the service of a foreign power.

Six other members of the espionage band, who were taken into custody by federal agents in New Jersey, Michigan, and Wisconsin, will be brought to New York in the immediate future to be arraigned on charges of conspiring to violate the provisions of the Espionage Act of June, 1917.

Announcement of the smashing of the spy ring was made by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who disclosed that 29 persons were involved in the espionage work, five of whom are already in prison for other crimes.

The suspects—22 of whom are natives of Germany—include three women. Hoover declined to name the foreign nation with which the ring dealt although the known Nazi sympathies of those under arrest indicated that the ring was in the service of Germany.

BRITISH CENTER PLANE ATTACKS ON TWO CITIES

LONDON, June 30—Terrific British raids that caused great damage in ship building yards and industrial districts of the German seaports of Hamburg and Bremen were announced in London today.

The two great German ports were the main targets of RAF bombers which attacked various objectives in northwestern Germany last night in another of their virtually incessant attacks.

Bombs dropped by the British raiders caused huge fires in both Hamburg and Bremen, authorities declared.

(A Berlin communique said 13 of the RAF raiders were shot down.)

The British Air Ministry said a few German raiders attacked various sections of Britain, dropping bombs on eastern England without causing damage or casualties. One German raider was declared to have been destroyed.

BERLIN, June 30—The high command announced today that German night fighters shot down 13 British bombers raiding the northern German coast during the night.

The announcement said several civilians were killed and wounded by the raiders and that two hospitals were heavily damaged. Residential sections also were said to have suffered slight damage.

They Approve Subway Strike, But Delay It

HERE are some of the several thousand New York Transport Workers Union members who voted to strike unless their demands were met by the city. The union declared it had a majority of the city's 25,000 subway workers ready to walk out, but Mayor F. H. LaGuardia announced that the strike had been called off pending a judicial decision on whether the city may sign a contract with a union. The strike had been called for Monday at midnight.

SHIP WORKERS DRAFTEES MAY RESUME TASKS GET EARLY CALL

Seven-Week Building Tieup Ends On West Coast Following Vote

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30—Ending their seven-week strike, 1,200 AFL and 500 CIO machinists returned to work today on $650,000 worth of vital defense contracts in San Francisco bay shipyards.

The last obstacle to their return was removed yesterday when the CIO strikers, meeting in Oakland, voted unanimously to go back pending settlement of the few remaining difficulties.

The AFL men in San Francisco, who had prolonged the strike in defiance of orders from their international officers, voted last Wednesday by a large majority to return to work.

In voting to return, the strikers gave up their demands for $1.15 an hour and double time for overtime, accepting the coastwide master shipbuilding contract provision of $1.12 an hour and time-and-a-half for overtime.

The only major concession won by the prolonged strike—which was settled only after the navy had intervened and enrolled machinists in civil service—was the signing of the master contract, entailing the closed shop, by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company.

Among the issues to be settled by negotiation, while the men return to work, is the demand by the CIO unionists for a separate contract. Under the terms of the master agreement, worked out at conferences some months ago, to which the CIO was not a party, the AFL Bay Cities Metal Trades Council was named bargaining agent for all workers in the area. The CIO men balked at letting the council represent them.

The AFL Machinists' local in San Francisco will also see separate contracts with the various San Francisco yards. The local withdrew from the council during the strike.

COUNCIL READY TO TAKE ACTION ON PARKING LAW

Solicitor Joe Adkins announced Monday that Council is ready to act on its parking-meter ordinance when it meets in regular session Wednesday night.

Whether the ordinance remains the same as it was when presented to Council by the safety committee or whether several of its clauses were changed at last Wednesday's Council committee session will be brought out Wednesday night.

As presented to Council, the ordinance provided for the installation of parking meters on Main and Court Streets in downtown Circleville along with thirty-degree angle parking, but the ordinance may have been revised when Council met as a committee of the whole to discuss the issue last Wednesday night.

President Wants 900,000 Inducted During Next Twelve Months

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 30—Nearly a million youths who will register tomorrow for possible military training faced early induction into the Army as President Roosevelt over the week end, by executive order, called for 900,000 draftees during the fiscal year 1941-42.

Big question mark was whether those already under training would be returned to private life at the end of a year, or held longer in camp either by congressional action or presidential order.

Temporary executive offices here had no immediate comment on reports the administration might ask congress to extend the (Continued on Page Two)

TORRID WEATHER CONTINUES; HIGH OF 96 RECORDED

Circleville and Pickaway County sweltered Monday as the season's most torrid heat wave, which drove temperatures Saturday and Sunday to the highest of the season, continued.

Possibility of a few scattered showers was all the encouragement the weatherman would give Monday as temperatures pushed back up the scale from a low of 72.

Saturday was the season's hottest day, the official reading checked at 96 degrees, and Sunday's high was but two degrees cooler at 94.

A .31 inch rainfall Sunday afternoon brought temporary relief from the heat and left June's total rainfall at 8.6 inches. Total rainfall for the year is 18.24 inches, according to Weatherman Ervin Leist.

Farmers returned to their harvest fields Monday despite the hot weather and were cutting and combining their wheat. The hot weather has hastened the wheat harvest by several days, according to agricultural officials. Farmers generally are reporting good harvests.

Agents Of Moscow Trying To Undermine Nation's Security, Is Charge

VICHY, June 30—The French government severed diplomatic and consular relations with Soviet Russia today, accusing Russian agents of carrying out activities contrary to the internal order and security of France.

Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darian notified the Russian ambassador of the action and at the same time the French envoy to Moscow notified the Kremlin.

All plans were made to return the French and Russian diplomatic and consular delegations to their respective countries.

U. S. Hospital Bombed

LONDON—A Reuters (British) dispatch from Chungking said today the American Methodist Mission hospital and the British embassy buildings at the Chinese capital were demolished yesterday during an intense Japanese air raid. The dispatch said bombs landed near the United States embassy.

Dentz Home Struck
VICHY, France—Killing five persons and wounding four, British bombers destroyed the private residence of Gen. Henri Dentz, French high commissioner for Syria, in an attack on the seaport of Beirut, according to an official announcement today. Dentz and his wife were not present when the raid occurred.

BRITISH SHIPS SUNK

BERLIN—The high command announced today that German submarines sank five British steamers, including a heavily armed auxiliary cruiser, in the Atlantic Ocean. The communique said the sunken ships totalled 25,400 tons.

HOOVER FAVORS 7-POINT STAND TO EVADE WAR

CHICAGO, June 30—Former President Herbert Hoover today championed a seven-point program which he declared will keep the United States out of war.

Denying that "we are already in the war" in a nationwide radio broadcast from Chicago last night, the former president advocated:

- "1. Give every aid to Britain and China, but keep American boys out of the war zone.
- "2. Arm to the teeth for defense of the Western Hemisphere.
- "3. Uphold congress in its responsibility to determine peace or war.
- "4. Stop the notion of an ideological war to impose the 'four freedoms' on other nations against their will.
- "5. Improve the four freedoms within the nation.
- "6. Remain strong enough to promote a just and permanent peace.
- "7. Prepare a new concept of human relations."

Moscow Ridicules Advances Reported By Berlin, Says Red Army Holding

U. S. Ambassador In Soviet Capital Has Confab With Molotov

BERLIN, June 30—German military authorities today announced the capture of Minsk, Lwow and Libau.

By International News Service
A battle of war claims between Berlin and Moscow was raging today. Germany claimed sweeping victories and advances; Moscow said the lines of her Red army were holding fast.

But from the Baltic to the Black Sea, the tide of war roared on with unrelenting fury into its eighth day.

While Berlin claimed the wheels of Nazi mechanized units were rolling along the road from Minsk to Moscow, Russia reported repulse of German attacks all along the line. One great German stab at landing an expeditionary force at Viborg (Viipuri, on the Gulf of Finland near the Karelian Isthmus was reported decisively thrown back during the night, according to Moscow.

On the other hand, a Berlin radio broadcast in the French language claimed the capture of Minsk by Nazi forces. In Berlin, the German high command claimed capture of the fortified city of Lwow (Lemberg) in old Poland.

Military authorities in Berlin said this new success, coupled with German advances in the Byalistok region, had given the Nazi forces the key to the net of railways and roads leading into the rich Soviet Ukraine.

Progress Admitted
British military authorities in London, however, admitted that German forces advancing against Kiev in the Soviet Ukraine "undoubtedly have made considerable progress" and have covered nearly 180 miles.

While the battle raged on, international reaction to the Russo-German war continued to develop in scope. In Vichy, the French government severed diplomatic and consular relations with Soviet Russia. In Moscow, official sources said United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhart conferred for an hour yesterday with Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov.

At the same time, Moscow ridiculed German victory claims.

On the line stretching from the Barents Sea to the Gulf of Finland, Moscow contended, a massive German-Finnish offensive had been halted.

The Red high command also claimed that a great Nazi Panzer drive on the Polish front had been defeated with the annihilation of an entire German tank division.

WOMAN KILLS HUSBAND IN DOMESTIC QUARREL

AKRON, June 30—Second degree murder charges today were expected to be placed against Mrs. Fern Westfall, 37-year-old grandmother who admitted to police the fatal shooting of her husband, Preston, 39, after a quarrel over "another woman."

Police said they know the identity of the other woman but have been unable to find her.

Westfall was a special policeman for the Babcock & Wilcox Co. of nearby Barbours.

Mrs. Westfall's plea that she be allowed to attend funeral services today was being considered.

VITAL NATIONAL SECRETS BEING SOUGHT BY MOB

J. Edgar Hoover Says Great Roundup Fruit Of Two Years Of Work

had progressed well beyond the White Russian city of Minsk and were driving along the broad highway toward Moscow. But the Soviets claimed that furious German assaults had been defeated at Minsk.

Ridiculing what it called "boastful equipment vital to the National Defense."

"Others have served until very recently aboard American-flag vessels engaged in trans-Atlantic and coastwise travel and on trans-Atlantic clipper planes."

Efforts to obtain and transmit data on U. S. rearmament, manufacture of aircraft and other munitions of war, marked the chief interest of the ring. Ship movements, industrial and commercial developments, also drew their attention.

A Manhattan restaurant—the "Little Casino" on East 55th Street—was the central meeting place and a sort of clearing house for the spies, Hoover said. The restaurant proprietor, Richard Eichenlaub, 36, was one of those under arrest.

The espionage agents operated as a group, Hoover asserted. "They may not have been completely known to each other, but the ring functioned as a unit," he said. The information they gathered was relayed to Europe by courier and radio.

The FBI chief said his bureau had been on their trail for two years, but had not sprung their trap until all the higher-ups had been identified. Asked if the group's operations had harmed the U. S. Hoover said he could not comment on material that would come before the grand jury.

Characterized by Hoover as a leading figure in the ring was Frederick Joubert Duquesne, 63, of New York City.

"This man has been a spy for 40 years," Hoover said. "He was active in the Boer War and was charged with murder in the World War sinking of the British ship Tennyson in 1918."

The ramifications of the ring were disclosed by the occupations of the members, Hoover said.

Members of the ring have been employed by the German consulate in New York, the German library of information, the Germania Book and Specialty Co., the Sperry Gyroscope Co.—manufacturers of the secret American bomb sight—the United States Steamship Lines, Westinghouse Electric, Bendix Aviation and Pan American Airways. One man was a representative for the Ford and Chrysler companies abroad.

The following are the 29 charged with conspiracy to commit espionage:

Paul Bante of New York City, born Lennep, Germany, November 14, 1890. Ironworker, tool and die-maker; Naturalized citizen.

Max Blank of New York City, born Freiburg, Germany, September 7, 1902. Seaman, bookkeeper and clerk, was employed by the German Library of Information, German citizen.

was passed 24 years ago. The act makes it a crime to transmit unlawfully information affecting National Defense, to a foreign power.

Disclosing that the arrests were made after two years of work by G-men, Hoover asserted:

"This is one of the most active, extensive and vicious groups we have ever had to deal with. Among the individuals taken into custody some are or recently have been employed in plants manufacturing Nazi reports, the Moscow war bulletin put Russia losses at 850 planes, 900 tanks and 15,000 troops missing or captured. But the Germans announced destruction of 4,107 Russian planes, destruction or capture of 2,233 Red tanks and capture of at least 40,000 Russian soldiers.

In addition, said the Germans, two entire Russian armies have been trapped at Byalstok.

German military authorities said that while the Nazi spearhead is pushing beyond Minsk, Soviet armies all along the front are retreating in panic under a German "aerial inferno."

Aerial warfare continued during the night between Britain and Germany. A few German planes raided sections of Britain but did no damage, according to the British Air Ministry. One of the places bombed was the village of New York in Lincolnshire.

British planes during the night heavily attacked the German seaports of Hamburg and Bremen, causing great fires and heavily damaging ship building yards and industrial areas. The Germans said 13 of the British raiders were shot down.

The Germans claimed luftwaffe bombers sank two ships totalling 11,500 tons and damaged two more totalling 15,000 tons 60 miles off Great Yarmouth.

LITTLE CHATS ON PUBLIC NOTICES

HE MEANT BUSINESS

Credited to the Highway Traveler, the following Notice ascribed to an unidentified rural weekly was reprinted by Reader's Digest:

Anyone found near my chicken house at night will be found there next morning.

Here, in essence, is the Public Notice in its most forthright and primitive form. All joking aside, the unnamed chicken fancier was serving Notice that he proposed to protect his rights. The protection of rights, public and private, is the prime function of the Public Notice.

Whether the story is real or just the product of someone's imagination, another point is worth noting. This is that the warning was given through the columns of a newspaper. Without venturing into possible legal complications, the assumption is that the Notice was published where it would most likely be seen. In real life, whether in the city or in rural areas, the newspaper of general circulation is the medium best suited and most readily available for this purpose.

'INTRIGUE' BY FUEHRER TOLD

The scheme, and rushed to Hitler offering complete "collaboration."

This drew withering denunciations from President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull.

Britain, which for months had been trying to make up its mind to attack in Syria, launched an offensive with Free French forces to seize this strategically vital region. Then on June 15, British Intelligence got wind of quiet German withdrawals of air and other forces from French bases.

This was why the British took the initiative in their continuous day and night bombing raids wreaking havoc on key German centers.

East Protected

Fearful of attack and anxious to appease in all directions, Moscow abandoned its stiff-necked coolness to Japan and hurriedly signed a pact in order to ensure at least temporary tranquility on its eastern border.

Simultaneously Stalin abandoned his traditional behind-the-scenes role and actively assumed the reins as Premier of Russia. Russia began massing 160 divisions on its western borders.

It was at this time that Ambassador John Winant returned to the U. S. A. at the request of Prime Minister Churchill in order to give President Roosevelt a complete fill-in and to deliver categorical assurances from Churchill that Britain will never make peace with Hitler.

Note—The British Government was so sure Hitler would attack Russia that Churchill was able to prepare and deliver his historic radio address only eighteen hours after Hitler invaded Russia.

German military authorities said that while the Nazi spearhead is pushing beyond Minsk, Soviet armies all along the front are retreating in panic under a German "aerial inferno."

Aerial warfare continued during the night between Britain and Germany. A few German planes raided sections of Britain but did no damage, according to the British Air Ministry. One of the places bombed was the village of New York in Lincolnshire.

British planes during the night heavily attacked the German seaports of Hamburg and Bremen, causing great fires and heavily damaging ship building yards and industrial areas. The Germans said 13 of the British raiders were shot down.

The Germans claimed luftwaffe bombers sank two ships totalling 11,500 tons and damaged two more totalling 15,000 tons 60 miles off Great Yarmouth.

LITTLE CHATS ON PUBLIC NOTICES

HE MEANT BUSINESS

Credited to the Highway Traveler, the following Notice ascribed to an unidentified rural weekly was reprinted by Reader's Digest:

Anyone found near my chicken house at night will be found there next morning.

Here, in essence, is the Public Notice in its most forthright and primitive form. All joking aside, the unnamed chicken fancier was serving Notice that he proposed to protect his rights. The protection of rights, public and private, is the prime function of the Public Notice.

Whether the story is real or just the product of someone's imagination, another point is worth noting. This is that the warning was given through the columns of a newspaper. Without venturing into possible legal complications, the assumption is that the Notice was published where it would most likely be seen. In real life, whether in the city or in rural areas, the newspaper of general circulation is the medium best suited and most readily available for this purpose.

were faulty, police said. Buskirk was released after he agreed to appear before Mayor W. B. Cady, Monday at 7 p. m.

Harry M. Turner, 17, 367 East Walnut Street, was arrested Sunday at 10 a. m. on North Court Street for failing to stop at Hayward Avenue. He will be called before juvenile court officials sometime Monday, police officers said.

Eugene Clark, 14, Circleville Route 3, suffered a deep cut on his right leg below the knee Saturday night when his new bicycle ran into the automobile of Frank A. (Tye) Davis, 611 South Court Street, on Pinckney Street.

Davis was turning in a Pinckney Street alley behind the Grand Theatre when the Clark youth, failing to see the automobile, rode his bicycle into the right rear fender of the car.

Failing to have an operator's license brought the arrest of Maynard Morris, 19, Williamsport Route 1, Saturday night about 11:45. He will appear in traffic court Monday at 8:30 p. m.

Sheriff's Officers Sunday arrested John Tuller, 25, Dublin, for driving when under the influence of alcohol after Tuller's car ran off the Goosepond Pike west of Circleville. Tuller was not injured and his car was not badly damaged. Sheriff Charles Radcliff said. The Dublin man remained in County Jail Monday pending hearing on the drunken driving charge.

Edward Tootle, 27, of Circleville Route 2, is in Chillicothe hospital being treated for cuts and bruises and a chest injury received Sunday when the car in which he was riding overturned three times on Route 104, south of the Route 22 intersection.

Also injured was David Waugh, 19, of Chillicothe Route 8. Walter Morrison Jr., of Clarksburg, with whom they were riding, was not hurt.

All three youths were thrown free of the car when Morrison lost control of it.

the scheme, and rushed to Hitler offering complete "collaboration." This drew withering denunciations from President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull.

Britain, which for months had been trying to make up its mind to attack in Syria, launched an offensive with Free French forces to seize this strategically vital region. Then on June 15, British Intelligence got wind of quiet German withdrawals of air and other forces from French bases. This was why the British took the initiative in their continuous day and night bombing raids wreaking havoc on key German centers.

East Protected

Fearful of attack and anxious to appease in all directions, Moscow abandoned its stiff-necked coolness to Japan and hurriedly signed a pact in order to ensure at least temporary tranquility on its eastern border. Simultaneously Stalin abandoned his traditional behind-the-scenes role and actively assumed the reins as Premier of Russia. Russia began massing 160 divisions on its western borders.

It was at this time that Ambassador John Winant returned to the U.S.A. at the request of Prime Minister Churchill in order to give President Roosevelt a complete fill-in and to deliver categorical assurances from Churchill that Britain will never make peace with Hitler.

Note—The British Government was so sure Hitler would attack Russia that Churchill was able to prepare and deliver his historic radio address only eighteen hours after Hitler invaded Russia.

NAVY STUDYING RUMOR MARINES MISSING ON SHIP

WASHINGTON, June 30 — The Navy Department said today it was investigating reports that the Dutch steamer Maarsden, carrying a group of United States Marines to London, had been torpedoed and sunk in the Atlantic.

The Navy Department, stated however, that it had no confirmation of the reported sinking, but that it would continue to check the authenticity of radio reports.

Last Saturday, it was announced that three marine officers and sixty enlisted personnel had been detailed to the American embassy at London. It was not determined whether all of the marines were aboard the Maarsden.

Sooner or later, Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and the rest of that crew will be floating around in lifeboats with their ship sunk.

If the Weather Man doesn't go on another rampage and again pull out near all the plugs from the water tank, there'll be lots of combined wheat finding its way soon from the community farms to the local grain elevators. Some wheat moisture tests have been made within the last couple of days but found too damp for marketing. Cecil Noecker has harvested with his combine a big lot of barley for Leroy Cromley. Near a 1000 bushels if we have the figures right. Bill Ford told us Saturday about the fine potato patches in his home town. South Bloomfield, and how awful big the tubers are. We are not in the least making a hint for more, but he liberally remembered us last year including some fine tomatoes. And we're not forgetting our old friend Harry Roese who has the bees that make the white clover honey.

It is all "Big Fourth" here now with the several committees in action getting everything ready, and lined up for that "biggest and best day" of all the Fourth celebrations yet held here. We'll be telling you more tomorrow, so keep tuned in.

If the Weather Man doesn't go on another rampage and again pull out near all the plugs from the water tank, there'll be lots of combined wheat finding its way soon from the community farms to the local grain elevators. Some wheat moisture tests have been made within the last couple of days but found too damp for marketing. Cecil Noecker has harvested with his combine a big lot of barley for Leroy Cromley. Near a 1000 bushels if we have the figures right. Bill Ford told us Saturday about the fine potato patches in his home town. South Bloomfield, and how awful big the tubers are. We are not in the least making a hint for more, but he liberally remembered us last year including some fine tomatoes. And we're not forgetting our old friend Harry Reese who has the bees that make the white clover honey.

It is all "Big Fourth" here now with the several committees in action getting everything ready, and lined up for that "biggest and best day" of all the Fourth celebrations yet held here. We'll be telling you more tomorrow, so keep tuned in.

UNHAPPY SWEDEN

LIFE is daily becoming harder for the last few neutral nations in Europe. Sweden, for example, is in a very tight spot. Its freedom of action is more fancied than actual. Explaining permission given German troops to pass through from Norway to Finland, an official spokesman said:

"The Swedish government was compelled to allow transit of one German division if it was to be possible to keep her neutrality. The German troops will not be allowed to remain in Sweden nor be allowed to return from Finland through Sweden."

Brave words. But they do not conceal the fact that the same compulsion which forced this decision on the government may force other painful decisions later. Getting German troops out of any area in which they once have a foothold is a trick that no neutral has accomplished in this war up to now.

FREE AIR FORCE

It is encouraging to learn that the movement for a separate air unit is making progress in Washington. Eventually we may have an independent air department of our national defense, as distinct as the army and navy, but capable of cooperating with either of those branches when needed.

It seems to grow clearer every day that the upper air is the fighting zone of the future, and the bombing plane is the supreme weapon. It can be used in many forms for many purposes, alone or in conjunction with land troops and warships. It is so different from the other "war arms" that it seems to work best when it has its own organization and is commanded directly by officers with flying experience. This fact seems to be demonstrated by the experience of the British and German air forces in the present war.

As for Hitler's inaction, he may be planning a new blow to knock out civilization; and then again, he may just be worried.

Statesmanship is mainly a matter of foresight, with a big premium on the statesman who can "see around two corners and through a thin stone wall."

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

NOT ONLY is the city of Washington packed so full of legislators, executives, judiciary, regularly employed departmental and bureaucratic staffs, and recently arrived emergency workers, almost all of them with large families, that its entire terrain, housing and offices are insufficient to hold 'em; there isn't even air enough overhead for such a mob.

Hence the demand by Chairman Jack Nichols (Oklahoma lawmaker) of the representatives' aviation accident investigating committee for congressional creation of a federal office of aerial traffic control. Jack wants the head of this set-up to have charge of air lanes throughout the whole country; they're all congested, he says, especially in the vicinity of landing and taking-off ports. However, it's over and around the District of Columbia that he declares conditions are the worst. He got his idea from his observation of the jam in the capital's special atmosphere.

Being unfamiliar with the situation as it looks above-ground as Representative Nichols discusses, I don't know how good a case he makes out. I'll say, though, that it must be awful, if the air's anything like as crowded as Washington is from the street level to the top of the tallest buildings in town. A community likes to grow. It implies prosperity. Yes, an increasing population is alright. But a multiplying one, at a rate of thousands and thousands per month, is an overdose. It's hopeless to try to state figures. The gravitation of newcomers into this burg has been far too rapid to keep track of. Reports from other emergency centers throughout the land indicate that they're checkful also, but Washington isn't merely checkful to say that it's overflowing is a masterpiece of an understatement.

RENTAL ROOF, MAYBE

Of course, rentals are skyrocketing. There's talk of putting a compulsory roof on 'em, but the trouble is it's feared that if that's done, landlords won't rent. You can scarcely get into a restaurant or up to a bar or find transportation downtown in the morning or home at night. Government workers' hours have been staggered in an effort to relieve the rushes, but it hasn't had any appreciable effect.

And that isn't all. There's been a terrific crime outbreak. Sluggings (many of 'em fatal) occur nightly, right and left. Outrageous attacks on women, ending up in stranglings in many instances are fairly epidemic. A huge army of girl workers are secretarily employed by the government. Their home folk, out in the sticks, afraid to have their daughters stay in such a place, are barraging their congressmen with letters on the subject.

The Washington police are under investigation, on grounds of inefficiency. But the fact is that a Washington police force was provided for, numerically, when the city was only a fraction as large as it is now. Today the number of cops are in ridiculously too small. They're simply swamped.

A lot of Uncle Sam's troops are harrased nearby the District. Congressman Michael J. Kennedy

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

SOVIETS TO FALL BACK
WASHINGTON—No phase of this war is being more carefully studied by U. S. military experts than the Russo-German, yet in no battle area has the War Department been so handicapped for adequate information.

No U. S. military observers have been permitted at the front with either the Russians or the Germans, so all they can do is wait in Moscow and Berlin and accept the stereotyped statements handed them by German-Russian military leaders.

Army strategists in Washington, however, have worked out their ideas on how the Russians should conduct their campaign. And here is the U. S. Army's strategy:

They would have the Russians follow the same tactics as the Union armies during the U. S. Civil War. That war saw some of the most brilliant strategy in military history. But although General Lee outfought the North and gained far more territory, he was never able to disrupt the Northern army. It remained intact.

Thus Lee always faced the threat of the Northern forces bouncing right back at him. And Washington is hoping that Stalin's troops will do the same.

It is probable that the Russians cannot hold too long against well-organized panzers. But even if they inflict terrific punishment, and fall back very slowly, it might delay action until the rainy season starts in the fall; by which time the United States will be turning out a real arsenal.

NAPOLÉON'S LESSON

U. S. strategists also are hoping the Red Army will take a leaf from the defeat of Napoleon and destroy everything in the path of the Germans—every barn, bridge, road and rail line. Even the wheat should be burned in the fields, though this is difficult, since Hitler carefully chose a period before the wheat was ripe and before it could be burned.

It was this destruction of everything in the path of Napoleon's army which really defeated him. But in all previous Nazi victories, their armies have advanced so rapidly that the enemy had no time to destroy anything. The thrifty French hesitated to destroy their buildings, their crops, their well-paved roads, but the less thrifty Russians probably will not hesitate.

U. S. strategists are certain Hitler will take the Ukraine and the areas around Leningrad within a short time. However, if the Soviet army is able to fall back beyond those areas, and can keep its forces intact, then Hitler will never be able to turn his back on Russia.

At present, betting among Washington military experts is that after some of the toughest fighting this war has seen the Russians will be pushed back, in some cases close to the Ural Mountains. There are no bets at present regarding the eventual surrender of the Russian army.

The war has reached the stage where everybody is indignantly retaliating against everybody else.

How to Aid Various Cases of Sun Stroke

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Any day now about this time of year the man in the street may be called on to perform emergency treatment for somebody who is overcome with heat exhaustion or sunstroke.

Undoubtedly many deaths reported during hot weather are being due to heat stroke are really the result of apoplexy or heart attacks. In cold weather they are ascribed to their proper cause, but in hot weather everything is blamed on the sun and the humidity. Excessive heat also is not borne well by those with high blood pressure and undoubtedly many apoplexies are brought on by the state of the weather.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

A distinction is made between heat exhaustion and sunstroke or heat stroke. In heat exhaustion there is a condition of shock, lowered temperature, cold clammy skin, profuse perspiration, weakness and dizziness, but rarely loss of consciousness.

Heat Stroke

In heat stroke or sun stroke the essential feature is a complete upset of the temperature regulating mechanism of the body. Whatever centers in the brain control perspiration and the other factors in this mechanism become paralyzed and the body temperature rises to astonishing heights—as much as 109 degrees Fahrenheit. The skin is flushed, hot and dry, and unconsciousness is the rule.

Premontory symptoms are nausea and dizziness and anyone who feels these symptoms on a hot day should apply ice or cold water to the skin and get in the shade and lie down.

Treatment will depend upon which type of heat depression you are dealing with. There is nothing very complicated about it—simply common sense. If a person is cold, clammy, weak and obviously shocked he should be treated by rest and warmth to overcome the shock. If he is thirsty give him water, a little at a time, not too cold. If there is some salt handy put that in the water.

Professional Treatment

The doctor will give him fluids by vein when he gets him to the hospital and also sodium bicarbonate to overcome his acidosis, so it's not imperative to get fluids into him, but give him plenty of rest and protect him from the person who comes along and who knows just what to do—such as raise his head, or roll him over, or raise his arms up and down.

The person whose skin is hot and dry to the touch, who is unconscious and who has a bounding pulse should be treated by ice and water drenched on the body. Never mind about getting his clothes off. Throw a bucket of water over him with a good deal of force. The impact of the water does as much good as the water itself.

After the body is wet fan him. The evaporation of one gram of water produces seven times as much cooling as the use of one gram of ice rubbed on the skin. The great indication is to reduce the temperature.

DEATH AT THE SWITCH

RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

ALL THE way home Henry and John Jones puzzled over the disappearance of the supposed murderer in the abandoned tunnel. They were arguing about it as Mrs. Potter welcomed them in the door. She was so relieved she didn't notice Henry's overshoots were missing.

They were still arguing about it at breakfast.

"I tell you, the fellow must have heard us coming," declared Jones. "He went into the tunnel, yes—but he slipped out again before we got there."

"He didn't have time to do that," Henry objected.

Richard leaned across the table, wiping his shirt sleeve in the syrup on his pancakes. "Why did he go into the tunnel, do you suppose?"

"Maybe he was looking for shelter," Jones suggested. "It was raining last night—and yesterday morning, too."

Henry was sarcastic. "He walked a long way to get out of the rain. All the way over the hill."

Richard observed wisely. "People usually go into tunnels because they want to go through them. I'll betcha there is some way through that tunnel!"

Jones shook his head. "We looked. We searched carefully. Besides, your father says it caved in for a quarter of a mile. Isn't that right, Mr. Potter?"

Henry nodded. "The railroad company decided it could never be cleared out. It wasn't built right, or something. But of course they might have been wrong. There might be a part of the roof that held up in the middle of that quarter mile. There might be a very good place for a murderer to hide somewhere behind that pile of fallen rock and timber."

Jones couldn't see it his way. "If there were an opening into an interior part of the tunnel it would have to be next to the roof, over the top of that pile, wouldn't it? We poked our light into every possibility up there. We know there is no hole through."

Henry shrugged his shoulders. "I still say the man we were after didn't come out of that tunnel after he went in. He was hiding in there somewhere. I'm going back and hunt some more."

Mrs. Potter threw up her hands in horror. "You are not! Have you gone completely out of your head?"

"But—"

"What you did last night was insane enough—walking into that tunnel with not even a gun to protect you—but to go back there alone . . ."

"Gee, Pop! I wouldn't do it if I were you!"

"We'll, perhaps I can get the police to help."

Jones dismissed the idea. "You won't find a thing."

"If we don't look there, where will we look?" Henry asked.

"We can look into the lives of the members of the model railroad club I'm curious about Hans Svenson, for example. Why would a garage mechanic want to run toy trains? What do you know about him?"

Richard's eyes were wide. "Gee, he's the club's expert on electrical wiring. Remember, Mr. Harkness said . . ."

"Yes, I know," Henry interrupted. "I think Laurence was trying to cast suspicion on Hans. He said Hans could do anything with wires. And Laurence made it plain that the big control board where Mr. Ives was killed was a very complicated wiring job."

"Nonsense!" asserted Mrs. Potter. "No one can make me believe Hans Svenson would hurt a fly."

Henry nodded. "That's the way I feel about him. I didn't take Laurence seriously. In fact, I'm beginning to think that Laurence . . ."

Jones shifted the conversation back to Hans. "Sometimes a person who is honest in all ordinary circumstances can be caught in a situation he can't control. Dig Hans away any great need for money?"

"Money?" Henry was surprised. "But what could money have to do with it? Ives was almost penniless when he died."

Jones smiled grimly. "Money most certainly had something to do with it. Ives' peculiarity was that he gave money away. I feel sure that something connected with that peculiarity of his led to his death. So I'm curious to know which members of the model railroad club might have had use for a large sum of money."

"Who wouldn't?" Henry asked irritably. "Even Hans. He has an invalid mother to support. She needs an operation on her eyes. But Hans would never resort to crime to get money for her. It—it would be unthinkable!"

"Hm! I wonder? Mother going blind. Hans loves her very much. What would you do to save her eyesight if she were your mother, Henry Potter? Suppose you hated the man who could give you the money?"

"You—you make it sound bad. I'm merely pointing out that circumstances can provide powerful motives. I wonder if his mother's eyes could have taken a sudden turn for the worse recently?"

"Gee!" interjected Richard. "How do you guess all these things? He was telling me just yesterday . . ."

Henry stepped on his son's foot. "This is all a waste of time—our suspecting our old friend Hans," he said. "What if he did need money? How could he profit by the death of Ives, when Ives had no money?"

"There are such things as insurance policies—and beneficiaries."

"But—but that's absurd. You're stretching things too far."

"Am I?" asked Jones quietly.

"Of course you are!" Mrs. Potter told him.

"I happen to know that John Ives was heavily insured."

"But you don't know that Hans was going to get any of the insurance money," Henry reminded him.

"You're right. That's just a guess—a shot in the dark, as they say. I intend to check on it this morning. The insurance money, I understand, will go to Mrs. Willett. I want to find out if Ives had made any arrangements for her to disburse it. I can't imagine him leaving her the entire $100,000."

Richard whistled. "One hundred thousand dollars!"

"Right," said Jones, as Henry and his wife stared at him dumbfounded. "He had a $50,000 policy, with double indemnity in case of accidental death. Murder falls into that classification."

"You mean, the insurance company pays twice as much if a man is murdered?" Richard asked.

"That's the general idea."

Henry was curious. "How do you know so much about Ives and his insurance?"

"I happen to be the investigator sent here by the company in which Ives was insured."

Henry drew a deep breath. He and Jones regarded each other steadily.

"So that's who you are!" Henry said at last. "Why didn't you tell us before?"

"Because I hoped to prove that his death was not murder. I came here to try to save that second $50,000 for my company. It seems evident now that I can't. My interest from now on is solely that of seeing justice done."

Statesmanship is mainly a matter of foresight, with a big premium on the statesman who can "see around two corners and through a thin stone wall."

WORLD AT A GLANCE

NOT ONLY is the city of Washington packed so full of legislators, executives, judiciary, regularly employed departmental and bureaucratic staffs, and recently arrived emergency workers, almost all of them with large families, that its entire terrain, housing and offices are insufficient to hold 'em; there isn't even air enough overhead for such a mob.

Hence the demand by Chairman Jack Nichols (Oklahoma lawmaker) of the representatives' aviation accident investigating committee for congressional creation of a federal office of aerial traffic control.

Jack wants the head of this set-up to have charge of air lanes throughout the whole country; they're all congested, he says, especially in the vicinity of landing and taking-off ports. However, it's over and around the District of Columbia that he declares conditions are the worst. He got his idea from his observation of the jam in the capital's special atmosphere.

Being unfamiliar with the situation as it looms above-ground as Representative Nichols discusses, I don't know how good a case he makes out. I'll say, though, that it must be awful, if the air's anything like as crowded as Washington is from the street level to the top of the tallest buildings in town.

A community likes to grow. It implies prosperity. Yes, an increasing population is alright. But a multiplying one, at a rate of thousands and thousands per month, is an overdose. It's hopeless to try to state figures. The gravitation of newcomers into this burg has been far too rapid to keep track of. Reports from other emergency centers throughout the land indicate that they're chockful also, but Washington isn't merely chockful to say that it's overflowing; it is a masterpiece of an understatement.

RENTAL ROOF, MAYBE

Of course, rentals are skyrocketing. There's talk of putting a compulsory roof on 'em, but the trouble is it's feared that if that's done, landlords won't rent.

You can scarcely get into a restaurant or up to a bar or find transportation downtown in the morning or home at night. Government workers' hours have been staggered in an effort to relieve the rushes, but it hasn't had any appreciable effect.

And that isn't all. There's been a terrific crime outbreak. Sluggings (many of 'em fatal) occur nightly, right and left. Outrageous attacks on women, ending up in stranglings in many instances are fairly epidemic. A huge army of girl workers are secretarily employed by the government. Their home folk, out in the sticks, afraid to have their daughters stay in such a place, are harassing their congressmen with letters on the subject.

The Washington police are under investigation, on grounds of inefficiency.

But the fact is that a Washington police force was provided for, numerically, when the city was only a fraction as large as it is now. Today the number of cops is in ridiculously too small. They're simply swamped.

A lot of Uncle Sam's troops are barracked nearby the District. Congressman Michael J. Kennedy of New York is clamoring to have plenty of 'em assigned to police duty in the capital. Even if they don't turn out to be very good sleuths, he says they can attend to jobs like bossing traffic, relieving professional cops for service at murder prevention or catching the murderers after they've done their dirty work.

The only question is, "Can soldiers be so employed?" Mike Kennedy thinks they can.

MOVE 'EM AWAY?

Congressman A. J. Sabath's plan is to thin the capital out by scattering a good many governmental agencies away from Washington—to Chicago (his own home town) and elsewhere.

That likewise would prevent some problems, though. Most of the places he suggests are crowded, too, though not like Washington. Furthermore, many federal workers own Washington homes. It would be a hardship to uproot 'em. Besides, this is the natural center for the U. S. government to concentrate itself in. Taking that for granted, numerous private organizations, which have business to transact with Uncle Sam, have long maintained headquarters here. Commerce and industry would be seriously joggled by a governmental scattering.

But there's no doubt about it—the jam is fearful.

It used to be queried, "How many angels can stand on the point of a needle?" Now, "How many of 'em (defense workers) can be packed into the District of Columbia?"

SOVIETS TO FALL BACK

WASHINGTON—No phase of this war is being more carefully studied by U. S. military experts than the Russo-German, yet in no battle area has the War Department been so handicapped for adequate information.

No U. S. military observers have been permitted at the front with either the Russians or the Germans, so all they can do is wait in Moscow and Berlin and accept the stereotyped statements handed them by German-Russian military leaders.

Army strategists in Washington, however, have worked out their ideas on how the Russians should conduct their campaign. And here is the U. S. Army's strategy:

They would have the Russians follow the same tactics as the Union armies during the U. S. Civil War. That war saw some of the most brilliant strategy in military history. But although General Lee outfought the North and gained far more territory, he was never able to disrupt the Northern army. It remained intact.

Thus Lee always faced the threat of the Northern forces bouncing right back at him. And Washington is hoping that Stalin's troops will do the same.

It is probable that the Russians cannot hold too long against well-organized panzers. But even if they inflict terrific punishment, and fall back very slowly, it might delay action until the rainy season starts in the fall; by which time the United States will be turning out a real arsenal.

NAPOLEON'S LESSON

U. S. strategists also are hoping the Red Army will take a leaf from the defeat of Napoleon and destroy everything in the path of the Germans—every barn, bridge, road and rail line. Even the wheat should be burned in the fields, though this is difficult, since Hitler carefully chose a period before the wheat was ripe and before it could be burned.

It was this destruction of everything in the path of Napoleon's army which really defeated him. But in all previous Nazi victories, their armies have advanced so rapidly that the enemy had no time to destroy anything. The thrifty French hesitated to destroy their buildings, their crops, their well-paved roads, but the less thrifty Russians probably will not hesitate.

U. S. strategists are certain Hitler will take the Ukraine and the areas around Leningrad within a short time. However, if the Soviet army is able to fall back beyond those areas, and can keep its forces intact, then Hitler will never be able to turn his back on Russia.

At present, betting among Washington military experts is that after some of the toughest fighting this war has seen the Russians will be pushed back, in some cases close to the Ural Mountains. There are no bets at present regarding the eventual surrender of the Russian army.

The war has reached the stage where everybody is indignantly retaliating against everybody else.

How to Aid Various Cases of Sun Stroke

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Any day now about this time of year the man in the street may be called on to perform emergency treatment for somebody who is overcome with heat exhaustion or sunstroke.

Undoubtedly many deaths reported during hot weather are being due to heat stroke are really the result of apoplexy or heart attacks.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

attacks. In cold weather they are ascribed to their proper cause, but in hot weather everything is blamed on the sun and the humidity. Excessive heat also is not borne well by those with high blood pressure and undoubtedly many apoplexies are brought on by the state of the weather.

A distinction is made between heat exhaustion and sunstroke or heat stroke. In heat exhaustion there is a condition of shock, lowered temperature, cold clammy skin, profuse perspiration, weakness and dizziness, but rarely loss of consciousness.

Heat Stroke

In heat stroke or sun stroke the essential feature is a complete upset of the temperature regulating mechanism of the body. Whatever centers in the brain control perspiration and the other factors in this mechanism become paralyzed and the body temperature rises to astonishing heights—as much as 109 degrees Fahrenheit. The skin is flushed, hot and dry, and unconsciousness is the rule.

Premontory symptoms are nausea and dizziness and anyone who feels these symptoms on a hot day should apply ice or cold water to the skin and get in the shade and lie down.

DEATH AT THE SWITCH

RICHARD HOUGHTON

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

ALL THE way home Henry and John Jones puzzled over the disappearance of the supposed murderer in the abandoned tunnel. They were arguing about it as Mrs. Potter welcomed them in the door. She was so relieved she didn't notice Henry's overshoes were missing.

They were still arguing about it at breakfast.

"I tell you, the fellow must have heard us coming," declared Jones. "He went into the tunnel, yes—but he slipped out again before we got there."

"He didn't have time to do that," Henry objected.

Richard leaned across the table, wiping his shirt sleeve in the syrup on his pancakes. "Why did he go into the tunnel, do you suppose?"

"Maybe he was looking for shelter," Jones suggested. "It was raining last night—and yesterday morning, too."

Henry was sarcastic. "He walked a long way to get out of them. I'll betcha there is some way through that tunnel!"

Richard observed wisely. "People usually go into tunnels because they want to go through them. I'll betcha there is some way through that tunnel!"

Jones shook his head. "We looked. We searched carefully. Besides, your father says it caved in for a quarter of a mile. Isn't that right, Mr. Potter?"

Henry nodded. "The railroad company decided it could never be cleared out. It wasn't built right, or something. But of course they might have been wrong. There might be a part of the roof that held up in the middle of that quarter mile. There might be a very good place for a murderer to hide somewhere behind that pile of fallen rock and timber."

Jones couldn't see it his way. "If there were an opening into an interior part of the tunnel it would have to be next to the roof, over the top of that pile, wouldn't it? We poked our light into every possibility up there. We know there is no hole through."

Henry shrugged his shoulders. "I still say the man we were after didn't come out of that tunnel after he went in. He was hiding in there somewhere. I'm going back and hunt some more."

Mrs. Potter threw up her hands in horror. "You are not! Have you gone completely out of your head?"

"But—"

"What you did last night was insane enough—walking into that tunnel with not even a gun to protect you—but to go back there alone . . ."

"Gee, Pop! I wouldn't do it if I were you!"

"Well, perhaps I can get the police to help."

Jones dismissed the idea. "You won't find a thing."

"If we don't look there, where will we look?" Henry asked.

"We can look into the lives of the members of the model railroad club. I'm curious about Hans Svenson, for example. Why would a garage mechanic want to run toy trains? What do you know about him?"

Richard's eyes were wide. "Gosh, he's the club's expert on electrical wiring. Remember, Mr. Harkness said . . ."

"Yes, I know," Henry interrupted. "I think Laurence was trying to cast suspicion on Hans. He said Hans could do anything with wires. And Laurence made it plain that the big control board where Mr. Ives was killed was a very complicated wiring job."

"Nonsense!" asserted Mrs. Potter. "No one can make me believe Hans Svenson would hurt a fly."

Henry nodded. "That's the way I feel about him. I didn't take Laurence seriously. In fact, I'm beginning to think that Laurence . . ."

Jones shifted the conversation back to Hans. "Sometimes a person who is honest in all ordinary circumstances can be caught in a situation he can't control. Did Hans have any great need for money?"

"Money?" Henry was surprised. "But what could money have to do with it? Ives was almost penniless when he died."

Jones smiled grimly. "Money must certainly have something to do with it. Ives' peculiarity was that he gave money away. I feel sure that something connected with that peculiarity of his led to his death. So I'm curious to know which members of the model railroad club might have had use for a large sum of money."

"Who wouldn't?" Henry asked irritably. "Even Hans. He has an invalid mother to support. She needs an operation on her eyes. But Hans would never resort to crime to get money for her. It—it would be unthinkable."

"Hm! I wonder? Mother going blind. Hans loves her very much. What would you do to save her eyesight if she were your mother, Henry Potter? Suppose you hated the man who could give you the money?"

"You—you make it sound bad."

"I'm merely pointing out that circumstances can provide powerful motives. I wonder if his mother's eyes could have taken a sudden turn for the worse recently?"

"Gee!" interjected Richard. "How do you guess all these things? He was telling me just yesterday . . ."

"Hans stepped on his son's foot. This is all a waste of time—out suspecting our old friend Hans," he said. "What if he did need money? How could he profit by the death of Ives, when Ives had no money?"

"There are such things as insurance policies—and beneficiaries."

"But—but that's absurd. You're stretching things too far."

"Am I?" asked Jones quietly. "Of course you are!" Mrs. Potter told him.

"I happen to know that John Ives was heavily insured."

"But you don't know that Hans was going to get any of the insurance money," Henry reminded him.

"You're right. That's just a guess—a shot in the dark, as they say. I intend to check on it this morning. The insurance money, I understand, will go to Mrs. Willett. I want to find out if Ives had made any arrangements for her to distribute it. I can't imagine him leaving her the entire $100,000."

Richard whistled. "One hundred thousand dollars!"

"Right," said Jones, as Henry and his wife stared at him dumbfounded. "He had a $50,000 policy, with double indemnity in case of accidental death. Murder falls into that classification."

"You mean, the insurance company pays twice as much if a man is murdered?" Richard asked.

"That's the general idea."

Henry was curious. "How do you know so much about Ives and his insurance?"

"I happen to be the investigator sent here by the company in which Ives was insured."

Henry drew a deep breath. He and Jones regarded each other steadily.

"So that's who you are!" Henry said at last. "Why didn't you tell us before?"

"Because I hoped to prove that his death was not murder. I came here to try to save that second $50,000 for my company. It seems evident now that I can't. My interest from now on is solely that of seeing justice done."

Miss Brown's gown was of Heavenly Blue and the others were of delicate pastel shades with contrasting bouquets of gladioli.

The bride's veil, caught to her hair with a seed pearl hair, extended the length of her train. A Cattleya orchid centered her colonial bouquet of white roses and stephanotis in which was tucked an heirloom rose-point lace handkerchief. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. The bride had presented each of her attendants a pearl necklace.

Piano Recital

A capacity audience heard Mary Catherine Stein, in a piano recital from memory Sunday evening in the studio of her teacher, Mrs. Leon Van Vliet, of 157 West High Street.

Outstanding in the excellent program was her interpretation of the various movements of "The Nutcracker Suite", Tchaikowsky, which opened with a duo "March" with Mrs. Van Vliet at the second piano. The narration by Mrs. Herman Hill made a vivid background for the various hitting dances of the suite including "Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy", "Russian Dance", "Arab Dance", "Chinese Dance", "Dance of the Toy Flutes" and "Waltz of the Flowers".

Miss Stein's selections, differing widely in their range, showed great smoothness of performance and an adaptable technique.

The first three numbers, "Kamennoe - Ostrow", Rubenstein, "Song of the Rivulet", Pennington, and "Sonata", Mrs. Van Vliet, were followed by a two-piano number, "Coasting", with Mrs. Van Vliet as the second player.

Mrs. Dudley Carpenter soprano, assisted Miss Stein in her recital, her two lovely vocal solos being "The Valley of Laughter", Sanderson, and "The Second Minuet", by Basly. Mrs. Van Vliet was her accompanist.

Today's Garden-Graph

Never allow roses to wither or go to seed on the bush. Remove the spent blooms, cutting back to the second set of leaves.

Two-for-one pruning of roses.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, cut rose blooms with long stems, leaving two sets of leaves on the remaining branch. Two new shoots will grow out from the eyes near these leaves, as indicated by the dotted lines. The result will be two blooms to replace the one cut.

For indoor decoration, roses should be cut at the proper period in their development, not when fully opened. Cut barely open buds if the variety is a full-double type. Cut at the tight bud stage if a single or semi-double type. Cut the stems with a long, slanting cut to enable them to absorb plenty of water. Cutting off any immersed thorns allows them to take in additional moisture.

Garden-makers who have had trouble with seed rotting in cold-frames or in the open ground should use copper oxide at the rate of one teaspoonful a pound or a pinch for a seed package. This material should be shaken with the seeds in a canning jar to make sure the seeds are well-coated.

Wisterias may be pruned and trained now. If they have been making a good growth they will often be benefited by a hard cutting back.

Suspicious spots in the lawn should be investigated and chinch bugs looked for. This insect, which can be found only during hot, dry day, should be attacked at once by the use of tobacco dust, a nicotine sulfate or rotenone dust spray.

Forget-me-nots, violas, candytufts and many other small edging and border plants will be encouraged to make new growth and another crop of flowers if they are cut back rather severely as soon as they finish their first blooming period.

Some plants, especially those defoliated by canker worms or the unusually severe frosts in late May, will require feeding if they are lagging in making new growth. This should be done with great care so as to not force them to grow too late in the summer and thus not ripen before winter.

Unless the garden roses are lightly cultivated or mulched, and sprayed or dusted, at least once a week, and thoroughly watered whenever a week or ten days goes by without a good rainfall, they are very likely to stop growing and blooming.

It is not too late to make additional plantings of beets, carrots, lettuce and radishes in order to have a succession. In many sections, these vegetables may be planted until the first of July.

Although water lilies will bloom in water varying in depth from four inches to four feet, it has been found that they do best in shallow water from six to eight inches deep. This is the distance from the surface of the water to the crown of the tuber.

Price-McAbee Marriage Ceremony Is Announced

Neil Avenue Church
Scene Of Vows
Last Friday

Circleville friends will be interested in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Eleanor McAbee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McAbee of Wayne Township, and Mr. James Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Price of 118 Edison Avenue. The quiet informal wedding took place Friday at 8:30 p. m. in the King Avenue Methodist Church of Columbus.

A summer frock of non-crush violet linen with a beige linen redingote was chosen by the bride for her wedding. Her accessories were also of beige.

Miss Betty Bach, South Court Street, served as her bridesmaid while Mr. Edwin Bach Jr., was best man for Mr. Price.

Mrs. McAbee and son, Richard, and Mr. George Rader were guests at the wedding in addition to many Columbus friends of the couple.

A dinner for 25 was served at the Neil House following the marriage service.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Price are graduates of Circleville High School in the class of 1939. Mr. Price is associated with the Central Ohio Paper Co., Columbus, while the new Mrs. Price is employed in the research office of a Columbus department store.

For the present, Mr. Price and his bride have taken an apartment with Mrs. E. J. Lilly, 146 East Union Street.

Taylor-Brown

Gowned in traditional white satin fashioned with a deep embroidered pearl yoke and very full skirt which swept into a 3-yard train Miss Donna Lee Brown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Anson Lee Brown of Columbus, formerly of Circleville, walked down the aisle of the First Community Church, Saturday at 8 p. m. to become Mrs. William Laurence Taylor. Mr. Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rea Laurence Taylor, 2344 Coventry Road of that community. Dr. Roy A. Burkhardt read the nuptial service.

Miss Rita Jeanne Brown was maid of honor for her sister, the six bridesmaids including Miss Audrey Kerschner, Mrs. Dix Reeves, Miss Helen Drayer, Miss Phyllis Swoyer, Miss Ann Millholland, Columbus, and Miss Eileen Williamson, Detroit, Mich. Miss Brown and the other attendants wore identical frocks of satin and net with matching Dutch bonnets of net. Miss Brown's gown was of Heavenly Blue and the others were of delicate pastel shades with contrasting bouquets of gladioli.

The bride's veil, caught to her hair with a seed pearl hair, extended the length of her train. A Cattleya orchid centered her colonial bouquet of white roses and stephanotis in which was tucked an heirloom rose-point lace handkerchief. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. The bride had presented each of her attendants a pearl necklace.

Mr. Taylor's best man was Mr. Richard H. Barrett of Detroit, Mich., the six ushers being Mr. Richard Miller of Marion, Mr. Robert Howe, Mr. Roger Kennedy, Mr. William Scarberry, Mr. Dix O. Reeves and Mr. Richard Taylor, Columbus.

Dr. and Mrs. Brown were hosts at a reception at their home following the church service. Mrs. Brown received her guests in a lovely gown of marquisette and Chantilly lace of Orchid de Blue. A Cattleya orchid was pinned at her shoulder.

An aqua crepe gown was chosen by Mrs. Taylor, mother of the bridegroom, and she also wore a Cattleya orchid.

Mrs. George Foerster, North Court Street, grandmother of the bride, wore a beige formal with a corsage of pink roses when she joined the bridal party in the receiving line.

The bride's traveling frock of violet crepe was topped with a natural colored coat when the new Mr. and Mrs. Taylor left for an extended western trip. She wore a hat matching the shade of her dress and the orchid from her bridal bouquet pinned at her shoulder.

They will reside at 2674 Kent

Piano Recital

A capacity audience heard Mary Catherine Stein in a piano recital from memory Sunday evening in the studio of her teacher, Mrs. Leon Van Vleet, of 157 West High Street.

Outstanding in the excellent program was her interpretation of the various movements of "The Nutcracker Suite," Tchaikowsky, which opened with a duo "March" with Mrs. Van Vleet at the second piano. The narration by Mrs. Herman Hill made a vivid background for the various lilted dances of the suite including "Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy," "Russian Dance," "Arab Dance," "Chinese Dance," "Dance of the Toy Flutes" and "Waltz of the Flowers".

Miss Stein's selections, differing widely in their range, showed great smoothness of performance and an adaptable technique.

The first three numbers, "Kamennoe - Ostrow," Rubenstein, "Song of the Rivulet," Pennington, and "Sonata," Mrs. Van Vleet, were followed by a two-piano number, "Coasting," with Mrs. Van Vleet as the second player.

Mrs. Dudley Carpenter soprano, assisted Miss Stein in her recital, her two lovely vocal solos being "The Valley of Laughter," Sanderson and "The Second Minuet," by Basly. Mrs. Van Vleet was her accompanist.

Dodd-Merideth
Miss Marquerite Meredith daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Meredith, 112 Glencoe Road, Columbus, and Mr. J. Edgar Dodd, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Dodd, 1329 Lincoln Road, Columbus, were united in marriage Saturday at 8:30 a. m. by the Rev. J. J. Fagan, the nuptial mass being sung in the Immaculate Conception Church.

Miss Ann Dodd and Miss Virginia Dodd were two of the bride's five attendants and Mr. Richard Dodd was best man for his brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Dodd and family are former Circleville residents.

Mrs. Frank Geurin and daughter, Lucille and son, Howard, of Wilmerding, Pa., Mrs. Mary Looman son Howard and Miss Margery Looman of Steubenville were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Hanley of Washington Township.

or a pinch for a seed package. This material should be shaken with the seeds in a canning jar to make sure the seeds are well-coated.

Wisterias may be pruned and trained now. If they have been making a good growth they will often be benefited by a hard cutting back.

Suspicious spots in the lawn should be investigated and chinch bugs looked for. This insect, which can be found only during hot, dry day, should be attacked at once by the use of tobacco dust, a nicotine sulfate or rotenone dust spray.

Forget-me-nots, violas, candytufts and many other small edging and border plants will be encouraged to make new growth and another crop of flowers if they are cut back rather severely as soon as they finish their first blooming period.

Some plants, especially those defoliated by canker worms or the unusually severe frosts in late May, will require feeding if they are lagging in making new growth. This should be done with great care so as to not force them to grow too late in the summer and thus not ripen before winter.

Unless the garden roses are lightly cultivated or mulched, and sprayed or dusted, at least once a week, and thoroughly watered whenever a week or ten days goes by without a good rainfall, they are very likely to stop growing and blooming.

It is not too late to make additional plantings of beets, carrots, lettuce and radishes in order to have a succession. In many sections, these vegetables may be planted until the first of July.

Although water lilies will bloom in water varying in depth from four inches to four feet, it has been found that they do best in shallow water from six to eight inches deep. This is the distance from the surface of the water to the crown of the tuber.

DiMAGGIO BREAKS SISLER'S MARK, BUT LOSES BAT

WASHINGTON, June 30—Gloom today pervaded the great Joe DiMaggio's joy in setting a new modern Major League record for hitting safely in 42 consecutive games—someone stole Joe's beloved bat.

Entering baseball's row of immortals the New York Yankee outfielder bashed out a two-base hit in the sixth inning off Dutch Leonard in the first game of yesterday's doubleheader with the Washington Senators to tie the record set by George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns in 1922.

Joe was happy until the second game started and it was discovered that one of the 31,000 fans who jammed Griffith Stadium had copied his mighty weapon. Hitless until the seventh inning, DiMaggio borrowed a budgeon from Team-mate Tommy Henrich and drove a record-breaking single off Pitcher Arnold Anderson. It was apparently his last chance at Sisler's mark.

Then to top off matters another fan wrestled that bat away from the Yankee batboy and quickly ducked out of the stadium.

"Everybody has been swell to me," Joe lamented, "but the fellow who had the nerve to climb out of the stands and steal my bat spoiled everything. Only a ball-player could realize how much a bat like that means to me."

Jolting Joe is glad he broke the record, but he is equally happy that it's over.

STEWART TAKES COLLEGE GOLF HONORS SOUTH

COLUMBUS, June 30—Somewhere between here and Dallas, Texas, a red haired Louisiana State University junior today rode happily along in his automobile, whistling a merry tune, admiring the scenery and now and then polishing one of the golf clubs which brought him the collegiate golf championship of the United States.

The red-haired Texan was Earl Stewart, a 19-year-old golf wizard, who walked away with the championship in the 44th annual national collegiate golf tournament which closed Saturday. Along with the individual title, Stewart also took home the medal championship and the driving crown.

Playing the same blistering golf that he had displayed in winning the medal at 142, Stewart defeated Ray Brownell, of Stanford, in the 36 holes finale three up and one to play.

HEROES AND GOATS

Heroes—Joe DiMaggio, Yankee's outfielder, who set a new modern record for hitting safely in consecutive games. DiMaggio drove out a double in the first game, a single in the second of a double header against Washington to extend his streak to 42 games; Joe Medwick, whose three-run homer aided the Dodgers in beating the Cardinals; Joe Cronin, who hit a four-run homer in Boston's rout of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Goats—Lon Warneke, honored by Cardinals fans and then shellacked from the mound as St. Louis was shellacked by Cincinnati; Bill Lee, of the Cubs, who went the route in the last game against Pittsburgh and lost it in the ninth on two hits.

John Moore's Fine Horse Gaining Fame In State

A Circleville owned and bred pacer is carrying the name and fame of the city far and wide on the racing circuits this year, the horse being Jerry M., a handsome sorrel three-year-old pacer colt owned by John R. Moore.

The colt is in the stable of Harry Short, one of the top racing drivers and trainers of the country, and who has been so seriously ill for the last two weeks in Columbus. Short won with Jerry M., named for Moore's late father, at the year-old pacer stake, worth $500, at the Marion meet last week.

To add to the string of Circleville men connected with the achievements of the handsome son of Bert Abbe 1:59½, there appeared in this week's edition of the Harness Horse, the "trade" paper of harness horsemen, an interesting comment written by L. Gardner Duffy, a former Circleville man who was formerly editor and publisher of the American Sportsman, and now an associate editor of the Harness Horse.

Duffy says in his weekly paper, "The Feed Tub":

"The three-year-old pacer at Marion, Ohio, won by Jerry M. (3) 2:10, proved to be one of the best of the current season. Each of the three heats terminated with a finish which brought forth stirring vocal appreciation. The Circleville, Ohio, bred and owned son of Bert Abbe 1:59½, justly deserved the victory as he had the most speed and was able to carry the clip the farthest. His racing at Canton unquestionably gave him an advantage over some of his opponents."

WESTBURY, N. Y., June 30—

Remus, the big horse owned by Harry Short of Columbus, O., won both sections of the Waldorf trot, $1,700 feature of the final night of grand circuit racing at the Roosevelt Raceway, Saturday night. The giant trotted four rivals into the ground, setting a new track record of 2:14 for the mile and one-sixteenth.

SECOND DIVISION

OUTFITS STRONG IN ASSOCIATION

COLUMBUS, June 30—St. Paul, Indianapolis and Milwaukee, ranking in that order at the bottom of the current American Association race, served notice today they were no pushovers.

Each of the three clubs recorded a double victory yesterday. Milwaukee's wins over the league-leading Minneapolis Millers being probably the most spectacular. The floundering Brewers defeated the Millers, 19 to 12 and 12 to 5.

Milwaukee got a total of 46 hits in the two contests. The first game went 11 innings, the Brewers scoring seven times in the second extra frame. Lou Novikoff sparked the Brewer attack, getting three home runs, two in the first game, and a double among his seven hits in 11 trips to the plate. He batted in eight runs in the opener and three in the nightcap.

Fabian Gaffke hit a home run in each game for the Millers and took the league leadership in this department with 13 for the season.

Second-place Kansas City also felt the wrath of the second division, sixth-place St. Paul turning back the Blues, 4 to 3 and 3 to 1. Himsel was the winning hurler in the opener and Swift in the second game. The double defeat dropped Kansas City to third place.

Indianapolis, currently in seventh place, also won a double bill, defeating Toledo, 5 to 4 and 5 to 2. It was the Indians' first double-header victory of the season.

Louisville and Columbus split honors in their two contests, the Red Birds taking the first contest, 6 to 4, and the Colonels the nightcap, 4 to 3. By breaking even, the Colonels went into second place, a game behind Minneapolis, and fourth-place Columbus moved to within two games of the top.

Positively can have a look at Bob Feller's arm. It was moulded in a plaster cast recently at the Cleveland Health Museum.

SISLER SENDS MESSAGE CONGRATULATING YANK

ST. LOUIS, June 30—George Sisler, one of baseball's all time greats, today yielded the record he held 19 years to Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees.

Informing that DiMaggio had hit safely at least once in 32 consecutive games, this cracking the record Sisler had held since 1922, the gallant "Sis" promptly telegraphed the Yankee slugger:

"Congratulations. I'm glad a real hitter broke it. Keep going."

SLUGGING SPREE PUTS YANKEES ON TOP INDIANS

DiMaggio Helps Gothamites In Drive; Lyons Victor Over Cleveland

By Tony Pugliese

NEW YORK, June 30—The front office of the New York Yankees agreed today that Joe DiMaggio's record hitting streak is a very fine thing, indeed, but Col. Ed Barrow & Co., were more deeply appreciative of the fact that their lanky Italian outfielder has been a veritable bag of dynamite in blasting the Bronx Bombers into first place and quite definitely in the general direction of the American League pennant.

Idle until their doubleheader against Boston tomorrow when dimpled DiMag will try to equal the all-time consecutive game batting spree, the Yankees had a moment to meditate on why they are leading the league.

All of them admitted that DiMaggio's monumental effort at the plate is one of the first factors in the New York victory march. Also mentioned freely were the 40 home runs belted by the club in its last 25 games. And among other matters, the improved pitching and clutch hitting of Charley Keller were cited.

In compiling his streak with the stick, DiMaggio has batted in 38 runs and, otherwise, has clouted 17 homers to lead the league in that department. Obviously, these contributions came in handy to a team that was floundering uncomfortably far behind Cleveland's Indians, and somehow seemed unable to overtake the Tribe back in mid-May when DiMaggio began his run on pitchers.

Two Over Washington

The Yanks, however, hold a lead of a game and a half now, thanks to DiMaggio and all and, incidentally, a double-edged victory over Washington yesterday.

New York polished off the Senators, 9 to 4, in the opener, and captured the nightcap, 7 to 5. Tommy Henrich hit a homer in the first game while Joe Gordon and Keller smashed round trippers in the finale, thus extending the Yanks' homer parade.

In addition to this, the Cleveland Indians bowed down before the Yankee victory march while Ted Lyons pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 9 to 3 triumph over the troubled Tribe.

REDS BACK HOME TO MEET CUBS IN NIGHT GAME

CINCINNATI, June 30—The Cincinnati Reds, victors in one-half a double header with the St. Louis Cardinals, came home today for a night contest with the Chicago Cubs.

The Redlegs won the first game of yesterday's double bill at St. Louis, 6 to 2, as Sucky Walters scattered nine of the league leaders' hits. The nightcap, however, proved to be a nightmare for the Redlegs as the Cards won 14 to 4.

In the first game the Reds got 17 hits. Gleeson, Lombardi and Paul Waner each getting three safeties. Gleeson for circuit.

In the nightcap, both teams got 12 hits, but the Cards made their count most. Johnny Vander Meer hurled the first six innings for the home champions, allowed six hits, walked two and struck out one. Ernie White was the winning hurler for the Cardinals.

Manager Bill McKenchie indicated he would start Elmer Riddle against the Cubs tonight.

Idle until their doubleheader against Boston tomorrow when dimpled DiMag will try to equal the all-time consecutive game batting spree, the Yanks had a moment to meditate on why they are leading the league.

All of them admitted that DiMaggio's monumental effort at the plate is one of the first factors in the New York victory march. Also mentioned freely were the 40 home runs belted by the club in its last 25 games. And among other matters, the improved pitching and clutch hitting of Charley Keller were cited.

In compiling his streak with the stick, DiMaggio has batted in 38 runs and, otherwise, has clouted 17 homers to lead the league in that department. Obviously, these contributions came in handy to a team that was floundering unminutely far behind Cleveland's Indians, and somehow seemed unable to overtake the Tribe back in mid-May when DiMaggio began his run on pitchers.

Two Over Washington
The Yanks, however, hold a lead of a game and a half now, thanks to DiMaggio and all and, incidentally, a double-edged victory over Washington yesterday.

New York polished off the Senators, 9 to 4, in the opener, and captured the nightcap, 7 to 5. Tommy Henrich hit a homer in the first game while Joe Gordon and Keller smashed round trippers in the finale, thus extending the Yanks' homer parade.

In addition to this, the Cleveland Indians bowed down before the Yankee victory march when Ted Lyons pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 2 to 3 triumph over the troubled Tribe.

Second Registration For Draft Planned Tuesday

President Sends Letter
Expressing Thanks To Service Boards

Draft officials, Tuesday, will register an estimated 150 young men who have become 21 years old since the October 16 registration, send eight men into service and complete arrangements for sending another contingent into service next week.

Tuesday from 7 a. m. until 9 p. m. the Common Pleas Court Room at the Court House will be open for registration of the county's 21-year-olds. All youths who have reached 21 years of age since the last registration are required to register. Any who are unable to get to the Court House because of illness must notify the local board immediately and means will be provided for their registration.

Once registered, the potential selectee must keep the local board informed of any changes in address, occupation, dependency or other vital information. The new registrants will be given order numbers within the next few weeks, following a national lottery in Washington.

Letter From President

As the date of the second registration of American manpower in comparatively recent months drew close, President Roosevelt issued a personal message of felicitation to Local Board members who will conduct the enrollment. Commending them for past performances, the Chief Executive expressed complete confidence that they would handle their new job of registration with gratifying success. The President's letter addressed to local board membership, through National Headquarters, reads as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

"To the Members of All Selective Service Local Boards: "In recent months you have served this Nation well.

Without remuneration other than patriotic pride in the knowledge that your self-sacrifice has inestimable worth to your fellow selecting men for the armed forces, leaving at home those needed in industry, agriculture and other civilian enterprise.

"Now you are asked to perform as additional job—to register on this July 1, 1941, those men who have become of age since the original Selective Service registration day of last October.

"It is my conviction that you will undertake this new task without hesitancy—will achieve the gratifying results the rest of us await. With this conviction in mind, I commend you for past performance and congratulate you upon the success I know you will attain."

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

Throughout the State, the 330 local boards have reported: "Ready for Registration", and are in full readiness for the task of registering young men who have become 21 years old since the first registration day, and who are not specifically exempted by law from the duty of enrolling for training in the armed forces.

Ample Time Granted

From reports received at State Headquarters, it was indicated that the local board members and clerks would be able to conduct the enrollment with a minimum, of difficulty and would have ample time in the hours from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. prescribed for the registration to list the names of the new enrollees. On October 16, it was pointed out 850,000 men registered in Ohio, while only a frac-

No. 1 County Draftee
Writes Of Life At Camp Lee, Va.

Comes an interesting letter from Camp Lee, Va., where Lloyd E. Rinehart of near Ashville is training. Rinehart is Pickaway County's No. 1 draftee, his No. 158 being the first drawn in the national draft lottery.

The letter follows:
"Just a few lines from a Pickaway County draftee.

"I've finished my first 15 weeks training here at Camp Lee, Virginia. I was classified as a stationary engineer in a Mobile Laundry Company, but I haven't seen the laundry outfits as yet. While training here our days have been divided, one half of each devoted to basic military training and the other half to technical training.

"The technical training for our company has been on Mobile Laundry. I haven't had any of this training. Instead I've been assigned to carpenter work for the 15 weeks I've been here. This carpenter work consists mostly of fixing tion of that number will register tomorrow.

According to information from State Selective Service headquarters, local boards will send out questionnaires and the new registrants will be classified and interspersed into existing lists of registrants. By the end of the summer, many are expected to be in army camps, since they are better fit physically and are less apt to have dependents. Aliens who have reached 21 also must register, including all alien seamen in U. S. ports on July 1.

Eight men will be sent to the induction station at Fort Hayes, Columbus, Thursday. They are James Wiley Campbell, Circleville; Walter Stanley Eccard, Circleville Route 3; Albert Diamond, Circleville; Homer Berdell Hudnell, Williamsport, Route 1; Arnel Gerald Wiggins, Circleville Route 4; Earl Emerson Jones, Mt. Sterling, Route 1; Rex Pitt, Williamsport and Harry Jonas Strawser, Circleville.

The local board still has not completed its list of three men to be called on July 11.

up our living quarters by building desks, tables, shelves, lockers, etc.

"We have nice living quarters, living the new type Army barracks, about 65 men to each one. This is an old camp that was abandoned after the last war. It is completely rebuilt now. There are only a few tents here, those being used as a replacement center for the men for the first few days they are here.

"There are about 22,000 men here, 14,000 in Quartermaster training and 8,000 in Medical training.

"I think the Army is doing pretty well at providing entertainment for the soldiers. We have three War Department theatres where we can see the latest movies. There are several recreation halls where the soldiers get together for amateur contests, quiz programs and the like. Most of these are sponsored and broadcast by local radio stations. There are two Service Unit clubs where they have dances two or three nights each week. Local girls come to the dance with chaperons to spend the evening dancing with the soldiers. These are just a few of the ways in which the soldiers enjoy themselves.

"Having finished our training period here, about 900 of us are leaving for Camp Blanding, Fla. this afternoon (June 27).

"Army life hasn't been so bad so far. I'm wondering how it will be at the new post. I met John Baricklow the other day. He is a captain in our regiment. You'll remember him as athletic coach at Scioto Township in 1934-35. He is also a former Circleville teacher. Henry Markley who was drafted the same day that I was has been transferred to Fort Benning, Ga.

"I certainly enjoy reading The Herald every day. Please have it sent to my new address:

LICKING ENGINEER DIES

PADEREWSKI, 80, DIES IN GOTHAM

Famous Pianist And Polish Patriot Victim Of Pneumonia

NEW YORK, June 30—Ignace Jan Paderewski, internationally famous pianist and "father of Poland," was dead today at the age of 80 after a four-day battle against pneumonia.

The great virtuoso, who was known to millions of Americans, died at 10:35 o'clock last night in his 10-room suite at the Hotel

JAN PADEREWSKI

Buckingham which he occupied with his 82-year-old sister, Madame Antonina Wilkonska.

Present at his bedside, in addition to his sister, was his aide-de-camp, Sylvian Strakacz, a former government official of Poland, his secretary, I. Kiolopallo, his physician, Dr. Asa Liggett Lincoln, and nurses.

No announcement was available immediately as to funeral plans. According to Dr. Lincoln, one of the several physicians who had been attending the aged musician-statesman, Paderewski remained conscious almost to the last. Oxygen had been administered a few hours before his death.

The Polish patriot contracted a cold June 22. His weakened condition was unable to resist its inroads and it developed into pneumonia last Friday.

In spite of his weakened condition since his arrival in New York from Florida May 1, Paderewski ignored his physician's orders and made numerous public appearances to help raise funds for his starving countrymen.

A few days before he was confined to his bed last Friday, the white-haired patriot, who was instrumental in the birth of Poland after the last World War, made another appeal at a public meeting in New Jersey.

This journey, according to Dr. Lincoln, apparently sapped the pianist's waning strength, making him an easy victim of pneumonia.

Early today a cable was dispatched to the Polish government in London advising it of the death of the former premier. Paderewski had been serving as president of the Polish Parliament in exile.

Paderewski, who had started studying the piano at the age of seven, had not played publicly since the start of the present war in 1939, which began with the German invasion of Poland. "I simply could not stand it any more," he explained.

Before his hands grew too feeble for the rigors of the concert tour, Paderewski had played the piano for more than 60 years and had earned more than $10,000,000—much of which he gave to Poland.

Mr. Darst succeeds John O. Neiderhouser, who presented his resignation to the Kingston-Union board two weeks ago to accept a position as one of the Ohio representatives for MacMillen Publishing Company, a New York textbook firm.

Mr. Darst received his bachelor of arts degree at Ball State Teachers College, Muncie, Indiana, and has his master of arts degree from University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

He served for four years as a teacher in Fort Recovery high school, Mercer County; three years as superintendent of schools at Concord, in Miami County, and six years as superintendent of Franklin Township schools, Darke County.

COLUMBUS, June 30 — Search to Mary Louise, 19-year-old Columbus girl who has been missing since June 3, swung to Cumberland, Md., after a man reported picking up two girls bound for that city and driving them to Jacksonville, O.

HEALTHIER CITES LACK OF RABIES IN COUNTY AREA

Rabies have been conspicuously absent from the county this season, according to a report released Monday by Health Commissioner A. D. Blackburn. The report showed that one dog head and one squirrel head were sent to state laboratories for examination during June, but that both specimens proved negative. This is usually the season of the year when rabies appear most prevalent, the health commissioner said.

No quarantines were posted during the month, according to the June report, an indication that no contagious disease was reported in the community.

Under the health program for the community's Aid to Dependent Children 200 boys and girls are being examined at the health office. Examinations are being held Tuesday of each week. Forty-nine children have been given complete examinations and about 150 more are yet to be examined. Of the 49 examined, 28 were found to have physical defects. Fourteen of these defects were corrected. Eleven of those children examined had defective vision; nine of them were provided with glasses.

Only six of those examined showed major dental defects and five of these have received dental care. Only seven of the 49 examined had enlarged or diseased tonsils.

Three children were examined at the local health office for enlarged tonsils and tonsil removals were recommended for two. Seven children were vaccinated for smallpox and ten were given the diphtheria immunization.

Three tuberculosis suspects were examined during June by the health authorities. Three skin tests were made and three X-rays taken. Two positive cases were found, one being sent to Franklin County Sanatorium. Application was made for the other case.

Regular quarterly tuberculosis chest clinic will be held July 16 at the county health office, city health office, city health officials assisting. Examinations will be made by Dr. M. D. Miller, superintendent of the Franklin County sanatorium. Thirty cases will be examined during the clinic and chest X-rays made for each one.

PROPERTY OWNERS TOLD TO HAVE WEEDS MOWED

Many complaints have been received by Karl J. Herrmann, health commissioner, regarding the abundance of weeds growing in lots in Circleville. They are spreading seeds to neighboring residences.

To let these weeds mature and spread seeds is contrary to law and all owners are requested to have these weeds cut and destroyed at once. Property owners who do not comply with this notice will be notified and must comply with the law within five days.

No. 1 County Draftee Writes Of Life At Camp Lee, Va.

Comes an interesting letter from Camp Lee, Va., where Lloyd E. Rinehart of near Ashville is training. Rinehart is Pickaway County's No. 1 draftee, his No. 158 being the first drawn in the national draft lottery.

The letter follows:

"Just a few lines from a Pickaway County draftee.

"I've finished my first 15 weeks training here at Camp Lee, Virginia. I was classified as a stationary engineer in a Mobile Laundry Company, but I haven't seen the laundry outfits as yet. While training here our days have been divided, one half of each devoted to basic military training and the other half to technical training.

"The technical training for our company has been on Mobile Laundry. I haven't had any of this training. Instead I've been assigned to carpenter work for the 15 weeks I've been here. This carpenter work consists mostly of fixing tion of that number will register tomorrow.

According to information from State Selective Service headquarters, local boards will send out questionnaires and the new registrants will be classified and interspersed into existing lists of registrants. By the end of the summer, many are expected to be in army camps, since they are better fit physically and are less apt to have dependents. Aliens who have reached 21 also must register, including all alien seamen in U. S. ports on July 1.

Eight men will be sent to the induction station at Fort Hayes, Columbus, Thursday. They are James Wiley Campbell, Circleville; Walter Stanley Ecard, Circleville Route 3; Albert Diamond, Circleville; Homer Berdell Hudnell, Williamsport, Route 1; Arnel Gerald Wiggins, Circleville Route 4; Earl Emerson Jones, Mt. Sterling, Route 1; Rex Pitt, Williamsport and Harry Jonas Strawser, Circleville.

The local board still has not completed its list of three men to be called on July 11.

up our living quarters by building desks, tables, shelves, lockers, etc.

"We have nice living quarters, living the new type Army barracks, about 65 men to each one. This is an old camp that was abandoned after the last war. It is completely rebuilt now. There are only a few tents here, those being used as a replacement center for the men for the first few days they are here.

"There are about 22,000 men here, 14,000 in Quartermaster training and 8,000 in Medical training.

"I think the Army is doing pretty well at providing entertainment for the soldiers. We have three War Department theatres where we can see the latest movies. There are several recreation halls where the soldiers get together for amateur contests, quiz programs and the like. Most of these are sponsored and broadcast by local radio stations. There are two Service Unit clubs where they have dances two or three nights each week. Local girls come to the dance with chaperons to spend the evening dancing with the soldiers. These are just a few of the ways in which the soldiers enjoy themselves.

"Having finished our training period here, about 900 of us are leaving for Camp Blanding, Fla. this afternoon (June 27).

"Army life hasn't been so bad so far. I'm wondering how it will be at the new post. I met John Barricklow the other day. He is a captain in our regiment. You'll remember him as athletic coach at Scioto Township in 1934-35. (He is also a former Circleville teacher). Henry Markley who was drafted the same day that I was has been transferred to Fort Benning, Ga.

"I certainly enjoy reading The Herald every day. Please have it sent to my new address:

PADEREWSKI, 80, DIES IN GOTHAM

Famous Pianist And Polish Patriot Victim Of Pneumonia

NEW YORK, June 30—Ignace Jan Paderewski, internationally famous pianist and "father of Poland," was dead today at the age of 80 after a four-day battle against pneumonia.

The great virtuoso, who was known to millions of Americans, died at 10:35 o'clock last night in his 10-room suite at the Hotel

JAN PADEREWSKI

Buckingham which he occupied with his 82-year-old sister, Madame Antonina Wilkonska.

Present at his bedside, in addition to his sister, was his aide-de-camp, Sylvian Strakacz, a former government official of Poland, his secretary, I. Kiolopallo, his physician, Dr. Asa Liggett Lincoln, and nurses.

No announcement was available immediately as to funeral plans.

According to Dr. Lincoln, one of the several physicians who had been attending the aged musician-statesman, Paderewski remained conscious almost to the last. Oxygen had been administered a few hours before his death.

The Polish patriot contracted a cold June 22. His weakened condition was unable to resist its inroads and it developed into pneumonia last Friday.

In spite of his weakened condition since his arrival in New York from Florida May 1, Paderewski ignored his physician's orders and made numerous public appearances to help raise funds for his starving countrymen.

A few days before he was confined to his bed last Friday, the white-haired patriot, who was instrumental in the birth of Poland after the last World War, made another appeal at a public meeting in New Jersey.

This journey, according to Dr. Lincoln, apparently sapped the pianist's waning strength, making him an easy victim of pneumonia. Early today a cable was dispatched to the Polish government in London advising it of the death of the former premier. Paderewski had been serving as president of the Polish Parliament in exile.

Paderewski, who had started studying the piano at the age of seven, had not played publicly since the start of the present war in 1939, which began with the German invasion of Poland. "I simply could not stand it any more," he explained.

Before his hands grew too feeble for the rigors of the concert tour, Paderewski had played the piano for more than 60 years and had earned more than $10,000,000—much of which he gave to Poland.

HEALTHIER CITES LACK OF RABIES IN COUNTY AREA

Rabies have been conspicuously absent from the county this season, according to a report released Monday by Health Commissioner A. D. Blackburn. The report showed that one dog head and one squirrel head were sent to state laboratories for examination during June, but that both specimen proved negative. This is usually the season of the year when rabies appear most prevalent, the health commissioner said.

No quarantines were posted during the month, according to the June report, an indication that no contagious disease was reported in the community.

Under the health program for the community's Aid to Dependent Children 200 boys and girls are being examined at the health office. Examinations are being held Tuesday of each week. Forty-nine children have been given complete examinations and about 150 more are yet to be examined. Of the 49 examined, 28 were found to have physical defects. Fourteen of these defects were corrected. Eleven of those children examined had defective vision; nine of them were provided with glasses.

Only six of those examined showed major dental defects and five of these have received dental care. Only seven of the 49 examined had enlarged or diseased tonsils.

Three children were examined at the local health office for enlarged tonsils and tonsil removals were recommended for two. Seven children were vaccinated for smallpox and ten were given the diphtheria immunization.

Three tuberculosis suspects were examined during June by the health authorities. Three skin tests were made and three X-rays taken. Two positive cases were found, one being sent to Franklin County Sanatorium. Application was made for the other case.

Regular quarterly tuberculosis chest clinic will be held July 16 at the county health office, city health office, city health officials assisting. Examinations will be made by Dr. M. D. Miller, superintendent of the Franklin County sanatorium. Thirty cases will be examined during the clinic and chest X-rays made for each one.
